

BRISTOL'S

BANG-UP

4th

Firefighters lean into stream of water blasted at them from opponent's hose during water fight.

Water battle between local fire companies on Bristol's Common is a highlight of the celebration. Teams wear protective clothes.

When it comes to a big, block-busting Fourth of July celebration, it's hard to beat the one held each year at Bristol, Rhode Island.

Far from the established ritual and trite oratory one normally associates with Independence Day celebrations in this country, Bristol takes its independence day joyously, stretching it out for a week or more.

This year things start rolling on June 26th, gets into high gear on June 30th. From then until the night of July fourth, each day is filled with events, most of them free, designed to appeal to young and old alike.

Band concerts, massive parades, contests of various kinds, block dances, a tour of a man-of-war, picnics, races and a host of other things keeps everyone fully occupied right on up to the crowning fireworks display over Bristol harbor on July 4.

It's so much fun that visitors swarm into the community by both land and sea for miles around.

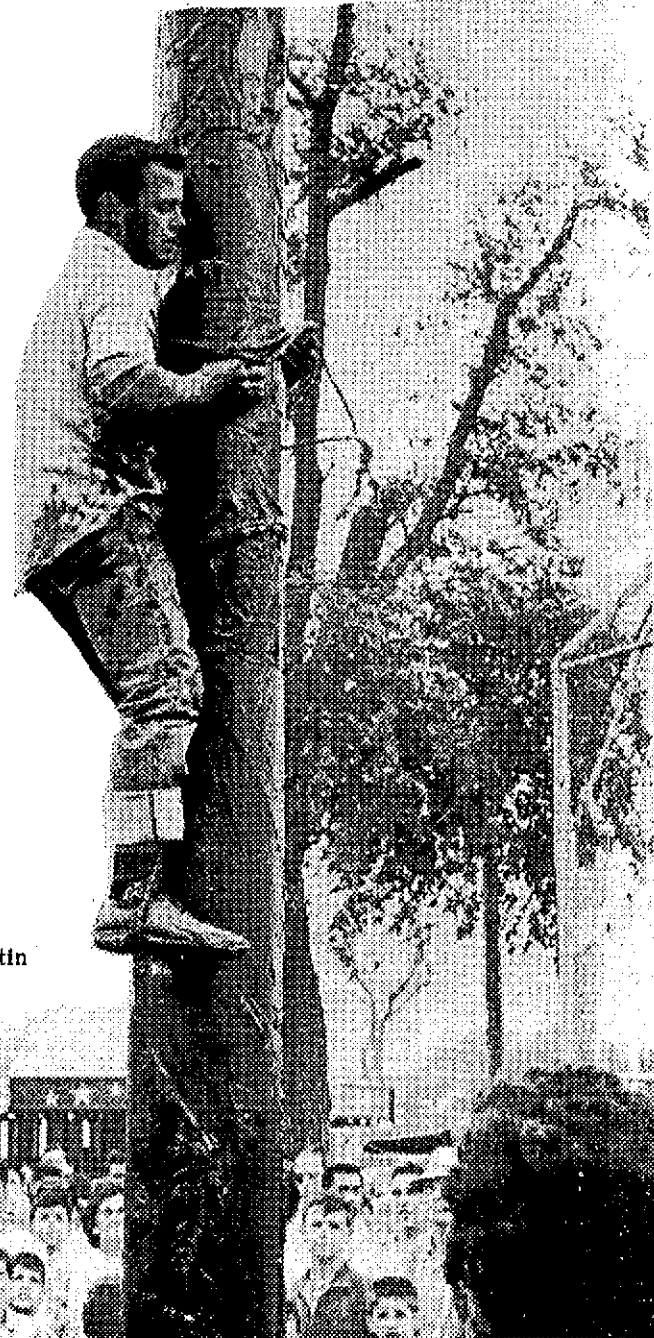

The citizens of Bristol point proudly to the fact that Rhode Island was the first state to renounce allegiance to the British Crown. Their City, they say, was under fiercer attack from the British than any other New England town except Boston. Bristol was bombarded in 1775, even before hostilities were formally declared.

Now, every year, they try to outdo the celebration of the year before. This year, their 181st consecutive celebration, they claim will be the best of all.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Is Natalie Wood in a film worth $750,000 plus a percentage of the gross returns?

"Is anyone worth that much?" she replied quizzically. MGM must think so. The company is splunking out that amount for her services as a comic kleptomaniac in "Penelope." The fee is a new high for her, but she seems undazzled.

"Yes, it's a lot of money," she admitted, "but it also seemed like a lot of money when I was 13 and making $1,000 a week under contract to Fox."

Whether she was worth her salary then or now is a matter of film economics, which are even more muddled than the normal kind. Chances are, her price will rise to even more stratospheric heights. The reason: Natalie Wood is virtually the only young American film actress who can handle drama, comedy and musicals with skill and is an apparent box office draw.

Natalie arrived for lunch in the MGM commissary wearing a bridal gown designed by Edith Head for "Penelope." It was the first time during the film she had eaten in the studio cafe; she usually remains in her dressing room.

Yet there is nothing reclusive about her. Elusive, yes. Says a press agent for one of her films, "Natalie has the knack of talking a lot while saying little."

As noted above, she also uses the device of answering an intrusive question with a question: "How's your love life?" "How's yours?"

She possesses a glassy professionalism that makes you realize she knows her business. That's only natural; she has appeared in 23 films since her debut in "Tomorrow Is Forever" at the age of 5. She will be 28 next month.

Concerning the longevity of her career, she commented: "I was never a child star. I played important roles in big pictures, but I was always the daughter of the star."

"I think perhaps I had an easier transition to more grown-up roles because I wasn't firmly identified as a child star. Those who were had difficult being accepted in adult roles."

by Helen Hennessy, Newspaper Enterprise Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—What is it like to be the wife of a world-famous operatic tenor in the long stretches between glittering opening nights at the Metropolitan or La Scala Milano?

"Well, it's sure not all wearing diamonds and Paris clothes," said Sara Tucker.

This attractive blonde bundle of energy who has been Richard Tucker's wife for 30 years says it's often hard work and a bundle of tension.

"I must play the combined roles of dietitian, diplomat, secretary and psychiatrist," she said.

The protection of the million-dollar Tucker voice is a challenge that has been dropped right into Sara's lap. For the family ranch house on Long Island's North Shore is also Richard's office.

He works there several hours each day and providing him with the necessary quiet to bone up on new roles is a tough job because the phone never stops ringing.

"There are costume designers, wigmakers, travel agents, photographers, reporters and just plain characters who want to know 'Would Mr. Tucker give singing lessons to my small son who has a fantastic voice?'"

And the other side of the coin was finding a spot safe from his father's scales where their youngest son, Henry, could do his Latin homework in the days before he went away to school.

The Tuckers have three sons—Barry, a stockbroker; David a recent graduate of Cornell Medical School (who, Sara proudly informed me, just won a coveted prize for his research); and Henry, who now does his Latin homework at Tufts.

The weather itself creates problems for Sara. "Richard, being an artist," she pointed out, "is often up in the clouds and not a bit aware of what's going on down here. Sometimes I feel I'm the original overanxious wife playing the 'wear your rubbers, dear,' routine."

Food is a challenge, too. When your husband has to be the swashbuckling Duke of Mantua in Rigoletto, you have to watch his intake of pastry and potatoes. "And I love to cook," Sara admitted.

"Another hurdle to jump where food is concerned," she said, "is that you never know when all of Puccini's hungry Bohemians will troop in for an after-opera supper."

"Frances Alda once wrote a book called, 'Men, Women and Tenors.' And believe me she knew what she was talking about."

Mrs. Tucker knows, too. For she not only married one, but tenor Jan Peerce is her brother.

The most attractive thing about the Tuckers is their insistence upon living a real family life.

"When the children were young," Mrs. Tucker said, "I traveled with Richard only on important trips. I didn't mind leaving the kids occasionally. We gave them so much of ourselves when we were home that they didn't miss anything while we were away."

"They always sat at the table with us, no matter how important our guests, and both Richard and I were always interested in their smallest problems."

The family today still gathers together on Friday nights and Sara does the cooking. "I think customs and tradition are important. It makes my heart feel good to know that the children will continue to carry on the Friday night ritual."

Although Sara has by choice spent 30 years being simply the wife of her famous husband, she is a painter of talent. Her earlier efforts received much acclaim and she says when Richard retires she'll go back to painting.

Richard Tucker is married to a very chic woman. She looked petite and charming in an apricot suit which showed off her blond hair.

"I buy some of my clothes in Spain," she said, "but most of them are Roxanne's from Samuel Winston. Her things are right for me."

Before I closed my after-lunch interview with this delightful woman who had greeted me with "I hope you haven't had coffee and cake yet," there was one question I had to ask. Weren't any of her sons interested in singing as a career?

"David sings," she said. "His voice is very good but he prefers a medical career."

She sat back and smiled. "My son, the doctor," was her exit line.

Fresh, unforgettable fragrances make a point on a warm summer evening. Joy perfumers recommend renewing a fragrance often with a purse spray. (House of Jean Patou)

NEW YORK — (NEA) — You've heard of the clutch situations that supposedly separate the men from the boys. Well, summer is a more delicate time that does the same sort of thing for women.

The woman who knows how to wear perfume and other fragrances like a pro is miles ahead since she selects scents that flatter her during hot, muggy days. She also saves money by not buying fragrances that aren't in season — for wearing. These are the extremely heavy scents that become overpowering as the thermometer rises.

There are some perfumes that are suitable for both winter and summer, such as a blend of rose and jasmine. These are a joy to wear.

Most attuned to the season, though, are the colognes, toilet waters, or spray powders that cool as they cling. When dabbed or sprayed on the back of the neck, wrists, behind the knees and inside the elbows, they can make a woman feel cooler as the alcohol evaporates.

To get the most from your fragrance during summer:

- Cool it . . . by storing colognes and toilet water in the refrigerator.

- Fluff it . . . powder away many heat problems. A fragrant bath powder used after a shower or bath helps absorb moisture and also makes it easier to slip into undergarments with less perspiration-producing wriggling.

- Repeat it . . . when retiring at night, keep a spray cologne at your bedside. If your home isn't air-conditioned, you'll find a dash of cologne at the hairline or back of the neck can help you relax on a hot evening.

Please, Hutton, No Gags in Mint

BY DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — It's probably a good thing for the national economy that Jim Hutton has matured. Jim is going into "Who's Minding the Mint?" and many of the scenes in this comedy will be filmed in the mint in Washington, with real money in living green. It's a great place for a practical joker, which is what Jim Hutton used to be.

In fact, he once seriously considered going into the practical joke business professionally. This was after he had been booted out of Syracuse and Niagara Universities for some of his didoes, and after his biggest caper, perpetrated in the Army.

He was stationed in Berlin and there was a major film festival at the time in the German city. So Hutton and a couple of buddies manufactured a fake movie star—one of them dressed the part, they hired a limousine and a clique of fans, they crashed all the affairs and created such a stir the "star" was mobbed. And they got away with it all.

After his discharge, he almost opened up shop as a professional practical joker, planning to hire out to rich people who were too chicken to do their own gags. But then he began acting.

For Hutton, "Who's Minding the Mint?" will be the first picture he has carried, after an increasingly important career as second lead. His last in that category was with Cary Grant and Samantha Egger in "Walk, Don't Run."

"I learned a lot from Cary," Jim says. "Not so much from anything he said as from watching him. The main thing he told me was that I shouldn't be too physical—I'm 6-foot-4 and all arms and legs, so every gesture I make seems exaggerated."

MEL BLANC, THE VOICE of Bugs Bunny and hundreds of other cartoon and radio characters, is making a good thing out of something he used to do for free.

"I did many television and radio commercial voices," Mel says, "and I'd give them free advice on the character. So I decided I ought to create them myself and get paid for it."

Five years ago he started Mel Blanc Associates to do just that. The company started slowly. On the day its formation was announced, Mel had a near-fatal auto accident—he broke almost every bone in his body, including a triple skull fracture and 22 breaks in his right leg. He was unconscious

Indian Plays Soldier's Part

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) —All but one of the 20 New Mexico Boy Scouts taking part in this week's Crazy Horse pageant at Hot Springs, S.D., are to be garbed as Indians. "The one Navajo boy we have," said John Clewlow, "will dress as a soldier."

Candidates Are Making Promises

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Frank Holt said Thursday night that as governor he could produce an extra $8 million for a stepped-up road and street program.

And, he promised in a televised talk, there would be no increase in the gasoline tax or automobile or truck license fees. While his speech on transportation needs of Arkansas was a major political activity, other Democrats in the race stayed busy.

—Jim Johnson said if he was elected he would establish a system which could raise teacher salaries $1,000 each, through an amending of the Revenue Stabilization Act.

—Brook Hays announced that well-known entertainer Mitch Miller will hold a "Sing Along for Brooks" at Little Rock July 7. Hays headquarters said Miller volunteered his help for Hays because he is a good friend.

—Kenneth Sulcer expressed dissatisfaction with the hearing into insurance rate increases and Gov. Orval Faubus' statement that Hays was the front-running Democratic candidate.

Sulcer said the hearing, at which a 21.2 per cent increase was overturned, was not really a hearing, but "an attempt to fool the public into thinking they had achieved some relief."

Faubus' statement about Hays was made to "ease the machine label pressure from his top machine candidate." He apparently referred to Holt.

Holt said in his speech that the extra $8 million would be used primarily for rural road improvement.

He will present legislation to the General Assembly, Holt said, which "will authorize certain interfund transactions in the state treasury that will immediately make an extra $8 million available."

He said the plan would not jeopardize any state treasury fund, and he said it could be accomplished under opinions of long-standing approval handed down by the state Supreme Court. Holt resigned from the court to make the race.

for three weeks.

Gradually he recovered and gradually MBA progressed. Now it is a booming company, doing dozens of radio and television commercials.

Although Mel still does his voices and characters on radio, television and movie short subjects, today more than half his income comes from MBA. Mel's son, Noel, is associated with him in the firm.

JAPANESE-AMERICAN COMEDIAN Pat Morita will play a Chinese laundryman in "Thoroughly Modern Millie," Julie Andrews' next. It isn't the first time that the Morita family switched Oriental alliances.

Just after World War II, Pat's father opened a restaurant here. Since anti-Japanese feeling was still strong, the elder Morita called it a Chinese restaurant. (Pat, incidentally, doubled as both waiter and entertainer.)

I guess he figured the palefaces didn't know the difference between a Japanese and a Chinese. They all look alike, right?

Everybody who is anybody, plus a sprinkling of nobodies for democracy's sake, showed up for the premiere of "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" And the consensus—the nobodies as well as the anybodies—was that Elizabeth Taylor is now the girl to beat for the Oscar.

The critique I liked best came from Eddie Rissien, a vice president of Filmways. "I think," he said, in all non-seriousness, "that this property would make a helluva TV series for Donna Reed."

HOLLYWOOD IS STILL THE LAND where quick stardom is possible. Six months ago, Katherine Justice was just another pretty girl from Mingo Junction, Ohio. Now she has the leading female role in "The Way West," with Kirk Douglas, Robert Mitchum and Richard Widmark.

"I'm not scared," the lovely redhead says. "My hands always shake like this."

She got the part after producer Harold Hecht saw her one and only television appearance, on The Big Valley series. She has not entered into the Hollywood social swim, so her achievement is the result of talent and beauty, not public relations.

"My press agent," she says, "feels that I have to be seen around to get ahead. I only do as much of that as I think is absolutely necessary but not one bit more."

Katherine Justice is an orphan. When she was 10, she was living with step-parents in Columbus, Ohio. Her stepfather died and her stepmother—she hadn't been legally adopted—was "considered not capable for several reasons."

At this point in her young life, she was adopted by the Justices. They had heard about the little girl, because they had already adopted her real brother. Until she went to live with them, Katherine hadn't even known she had a brother.

That would make a pretty good picture, too.

prove their popularity. I doubt you're in their group, W.W., but you might fit into the "in-secures" who almost subconsciously downgrade a boy who shows interest.

Do you think so little of yourself that you begin to wonder, "If he likes me, there must be something wrong with him?" — H.

The Secretary and The Wolves

Dear Helen: I am 19 and a secretary in a good company.

There are two oldermen in my department who are always fooling around. I know one of them is only kidding, but I am not sure about the other.

I think a great deal of both. They are nice individuals, but one is always saying, "Let's go away for the week-end," or he is trying to get me in the boss's office when the boss isn't there.

They are both married. Please tell me if I should keep on kidding and goofing off with them? One knows I'm joking, but the other has me — Co fused.

Dear Con: Stay friendly but not familiar. . . . And the next time "the other one" suggests a week-end or a rendezvous in the boss's office, dial his home, call him to the telephone and suggest that he get his wife's permission. — H.

Dear Helen: I was reading where one of your dumb readers thinks pierced ears look like misplaced navels. That is a lie. I have pierced ears and I don't look unpierced without earrings. Besides any doctor will tell her that if you don't wear them for a while, nature closes the hole up. Maybe people aren't getting their ears done as much now, but pierced ears will never really go out of style because they are so much more comfortable than messing with the clip-ons. — Smartest

Dear S: I'm certainly glad I didn't make that crack about "misplaced navels." It brought on every snappy comeback from "Of course that nut wouldn't have pierced ears — donkeys don't need them," to "She should drop dead already."

P.S. It's interesting to keep track of which letters bring the most teen response. In recent months these subjects lead the field in reader reaction:

1. Viet Nam situation — first by a big margin. Letters are running about ten to one in favor of U. S. Policy; scores of teens are begging for addresses so that they can write to soldiers fighting over there.

2. Wrathful answers to "No Name" who called teens "brats."

3. Pierced ears.

4. New Math. So far every letter written by a student has been wholeheartedly in favor, except for the first one, which started it.

Not one person rose to Batman's defense (as they did, in spades, several years ago when someone blasted the Beatles), and young people seem less than fascinated by the so-called "sexual revolution," "dope on the campus," and "teenage drinking."

They'd rather argue politics, and point out that adults have pretty well hashed things up.

Note To Older Readers: Does this sorta tell you something? — H.

Dear Helen: Does this happen to other girls? I think a boy is everything I'll ever want — until I get him. And then I no longer want him. — What's Wrong.

Dear W.W.: Yest it happens to other girls — and boys too. At this stage in life the chase is often more fun than the catch — it's sure that familiarity breeds contempt (attempt too). You aren't yet ready to settle for one.

Certain teens use "scalps" to Brill (Richard Gray, center) and Paco (Roberto Marsach, left) are told by teenage boss Rick (Jaime Charlamagne) that they will have to pay "protection" money in order to be allowed to sell newspapers. A scene from the dramatic "Terror in the City," an Allied Artists release starring Lee Grant.

MEMORIES—These wedding gifts of 50 years ago were put on special display at the Eisenhower Library, Abilene, Kan., during the observance of the Dwight D. Eisenhower's golden wedding anniversary. School Official Changes Schools
DEWITT, Ark. (AP)—Samuel King, former DeWitt school superintendent, has been appointed superintendent of the Linwood School District in Jefferson County, it was announced Wednesday.
The DeWitt school board bought up King's contract for $8,500, saying he was dismissed in order to expedite passage of a tax increase proposed for the next school election.
B. E. Turner, present superintendent at Linwood, has resigned to become Jefferson County school supervisor. King assumes his new position Friday.

About Paper
Papermaking began about A.D. 105 in China and was first made from the bark of trees, hemp waste, old rags and fish nets, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH
Diabetes Can Sometimes Trigger Tooth Problems
BY WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: About three years ago I had to have all my teeth removed. At that time doctors discovered that I had diabetes. Could this have been the cause of losing my teeth?

A—Diabetes, specially uncontrolled diabetes, can be a cause of early tooth loss. Increased rate of decay, bleeding and swollen gums, disease of bone that supports teeth, poor tissue healing, seem to be associated with this disease. However these are symptoms that in some degrees are characteristic of all debilitating diseases.

Controlled diabetes who take care of their teeth shouldn't have many dental problems. Because of increased rate of decay, visits to the dentist should be frequent, and oral prophylaxis should be done at intervals of two, three or four months instead of six months because teeth get caked with tartar more readily.

Good daily oral hygiene is important too. With good home care, which means brushing teeth and gums after every meal, gum troubles can be kept at a minimum.

Periodontal disease is said to be more common in diabetics, but again, this seems to be so in other debilitating diseases too. It may be due to poor mouth care, nutritional deficiencies, vascular changes, and physical inability to get to the dentist, e.g. in bed-ridden or wheel chair cases, or those too weak to leave home or institution.

Some dental procedures require special precautions. Patients should get their physician's approval for extractions, gum surgery or any complicated or extensive dental work.

Diabetic patients should eat before dental appointments just in case you aren't able to do so for some hours afterwards, e.g. after fillings are placed, teeth extracted, etc. Some physicians want patients to drink sugar and water, or orange juice about an hour after extensive dental procedures.

Antibiotics are sometimes given before and after dental surgery but this is an individual decision dependent on the type and extent of work done, and the condition of the patient at the time.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

No Play Like Wrong Play

By JACOBY & SON Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The duck play is sometimes just as valuable at a suit contract as in no-trump. It is a lot harder to recognize.

South lost no time playing dummy's ace of diamonds on West's ten. He lost a good deal of time trying to make the contract later on.

At trick two he led a trump. West took his ace and led a second diamond. South ruffed and started to draw trumps.

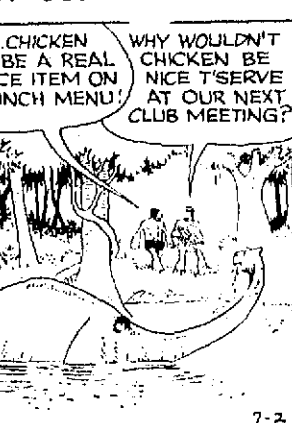

When East showed out on the third trump lead South came to a complete stop.

Finally he did draw West's last trump but he had to use his own last trump to do it. Then he led a heart. East took his ace and cashed his last three diamonds for down two.

If South had recognized the possibility of ducking his first diamond in order to cut communications he would have made the hand. Furthermore, he could duck without losing a trick. Barring something unusual one of his three clubs was going to be a sure loser eventually.

Suppose South ducks the first diamond. If East holds a six-card suit he can give his partner a ruff but with six diamonds to the king-queen-jack the chances are that East would have found a diamond rebid.

So South ducks the first diamond and discards a club on the second diamond. Then he knocks out West's ace of trumps. West can't lead a diamond to force South and South makes his game.

The play of the hand was short and sweet from the declarer's viewpoint. He ruffed the ace of hearts and drew trumps. Then he discarded his losing diamond on the king of hearts, ruffed out East's ace of diamonds and eventually discarded all his clubs on the rest of the diamond suit.

East was infuriated. He wanted to know why West had to lead an ace of such a long suit after his partner had doubled the slam bid. West was just as angry. He said that he led the ace because of his partner's double. He had assumed from the double that East was void of some suit and judging from his own hand, the suit most likely was the one in which he was holding the most cards.

South wanted to know why North had jumped right to six. Couldn't North have suspected that South's two big was highly distributional? Or if it wasn't distributional, why wouldn't North want to move slowly to investigate and slow?

Many Think Russia Gained Over DeGaulle

By FRED W. COLEMAN
MOSCOW (AP) — Diplomats taking a second look at President Charles de Gaulle's 11-day Soviet visit say he may have helped the Soviets more than they helped him.

De Gaulle returned to Paris Friday after a widely-publicized tour that produced friendly speeches from both sides but little in the way of major political agreement.

The biggest Soviet gain was De Gaulle's decision, even before his arrival here, to withdraw France from the military arm of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, some diplomats said. The Soviets have long sought to break up the alliance and reduce U. S. influence in Europe.

The Russians also reaped dividends from De Gaulle's speeches here and the Communist regime is expected to make use of them to emphasize French support of Soviet policies.

For example, De Gaulle repeatedly described the Soviet Union as a country with peaceful intentions.

He also said the Soviet Union was a country with peaceful intentions.

Communism was pitiful

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Communist party, U.S.A., this month held its first convention since 1959. It was a pitiful sight in more ways than one.

This in turn raises questions about the so-called new left which is supposed to be developing in this country, although not connected with communism which is said to look out of date to the new radicals.

Congress, courts, FBI and changing times made a wreck of the American Communist party. It claims a membership of 10,000 to 12,000, way down from the 80,000 to 100,000 it claimed in depression days 30 years or so ago.

In a way the New York convention looked a little like an old folks home. The 213 delegates and 42 alternates from 36 states were mostly up in years and had been in the party for years.

Many got bored and walked out the opening night when Gus Tall, the general secretary, hit them with a three-hour speech. Hall, 55, has been a party member most of his life.

The party wants to attract young people and there was some infighting with newcomers anxious to wrest control from the oldsters. The oldsters held fast.

It's not just the fractured condition of the party which makes it look pathetic. It's the vagueness. There were harsh words about the American role in Viet Nam. But, generally, the tone was as mild as a pussycat.

Hall was the prince of vagueness, talking about setting in motion a movement to present an independent candidate, although not a Communist, for president in 1968.

The party is trying to hook onto the fringes of agitation, like the civil rights movement or among youths. It's operating at a bad time.

The Communist world is split. The satellites are restless. Marxism in Europe is losing its rigidity, communism's chances in the prosperous countries are hopeless and in the backward countries it's not doing well.

The American Communist party is in a particularly unhappy spot and has been since President Franklin D. Roosevelt changed the direction of American thinking by establishing government concern for the general welfare.

All that has happened since then has been in the same direction, but more intensely, which makes the promises of communism look a little ridiculous.

There are vast areas of poverty and deprivation in America but the general population has a prosperity it never enjoyed before. And that population, since it now has so much to lose, is not going to listen to demands for radical change.

This is what the new radicalism in America faces: A largely self-satisfied society, richer than ever, despite the injustices inflicted on individual groups, like Negroes.

ASTC Plans to Change Name

CONWAY, Ark. (AP)—Silas Snow, president of Arkansas State Teachers College, said Wednesday that ASTC trustees had given their approval to a proposed new name for the college.

The name, State College of Arkansas, will be recommended at the next session of the legislature, Snow said. He said the school's administration feels the time has come for a recognition of the changing character of ASTC—a significant drop in the percentage of education graduates.

At its founding in 1907, the school was called Arkansas State Normal School. It became ASTC in 1925.

Sisters Retiring Here

Fay Moody

Lena Maryman

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

A dinner party was held at the Hope Country Club on the evening of July 1 honoring two sisters, Mrs. Lena Maryman and Mrs. Fay Moody, who are retiring from the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company after a combined total of more than 78 years of service.

Beginning on April 16, 1923, Mrs. Maryman has worked for Southwestern Bell over 37 years, all of them in Hope. She has been Operator, Senior Operator, Supervisor, Evening Chief Operator, and Day Chief Operator. She held the latter position from March 1, 1959 until her recent retirement.

April was also the month Mrs. Moody began her career with Southwestern Bell, but she started almost exactly four years earlier, on April 20, 1925. She has been Operator, Senior Operator, temporary Service Assistant, Evening Chief Operator, and Central Office Clerk.

The two honored guests were each presented an orchid corsage, and the table where a delicious buffet dinner was served held decorations of magnolias and roses. Several dignitaries and out-of-town guests were among the 75 in attendance.

A. W. Kurrus of Hot Springs District Traffic Superintendent, presented a billfold to each honoree as a gift from the company. Each received a bracelet as an Attendance Award from C. T. Mallory of Little Rock, General Traffic Manager for Arkansas.

The long-time Hope operators were given Life Membership certificates in the Telephone Pioneers of America by Mrs. Violet Clark of Hot Springs, secretary to the District Traffic Superintendent. Mrs. Alice Kate Baker and Mrs. Louise Fowler made the presentation of gifts from the co-workers of Mrs. Maryman and Mrs. Moody.

Towns represented at the dinner besides Hope were Little Rock, Hot Springs, Ft. Smith, Houston, Tex., Sulphur, La., Rogers, and Blytheville.

Foreign Aid Chief a Very Hard Worker

WASHINGTON (AP) — William S. Gaud, nominated by President Johnson to head the nation's massive foreign aid program, works 11-hour days and bring home reading at night. He also skips a 32-foot sailboat named Content.

"I spend all the weekends I can on her," Gaud said in an interview.

Gaud's weekends may start getting shorter after July 31, the day he is scheduled to replace David E. Bell as administrator of the Agency for International Development.

President Johnson announced Bell's resignation Tuesday and coupled it with the nomination of Gaud, who has been deputy administrator of AID since 1964.

Bell is to become vice president of the Ford Foundation in charge of international activities. He said he was resigning for personal reasons and not because of any dispute with the administration. "I am bushed and I am broke, but I am not mad at anyone," he told a newsman. He said he was delighted with the appointment of Gaud as his successor.

Gaud, 53, an affable Yale graduate who joined the agency as assistant administrator in 1961, said he plans no policy changes.

"I'll follow the same policies," he said. "We're on the right track."

The nominee outlined his philosophy about the $2.5 billion foreign aid program this way: "We live in a world that's changing fast; that's going to continue to change. It's to our advantage to do what we can to see that the world moves in the direction we want to see it move and that we end up in a world of freedom and opportunity and independent nations."

"It's a period of rising expectations on the part of developing countries and a period of increased obligations on the part of developed countries. Both for reasons of self-interest and idealism, we should do what we can to help developing nations improve their lot."

Practicing for the Game

FT. KNOX, Ky. (AP) — For 11 years I was practicing for the game. Now there's a game, and I want to play.

That's why Pvt. Thomas K. Crichton, 35, resigned at a captain's commission in the Canadian airborne infantry to fight in Viet Nam as a member of the U.S. Army Special Forces, the "Green Berets." He was accepted for Special Forces training last week.

Johnson Hits Power Politics

NEWPORT, Ark. (AP)—Jim Johnson said Wednesday night that the power structure didn't care who wins the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, "as long as it's not Jim Johnson."

Johnson continued his attack on three other Democratic candidates — Frank Holt, Brooks Hays and Dale Alford — whom he says were put in the race by Faubus backers.

"Members of this tied trio are running in triple harness in an effort to force Jim Johnson into a runoff," he told an audience of about 450 here.

Decision to Step Up War Not Easy One

By JAMES MÄRLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was a lonely decision for a man who likes the broadest public approval. But unless he faced the problem the war would drift. And public approval was dwindling anyway.

President Johnson, on the recommendation of his highest advisers, gave the go-ahead for bombing the Communist oil bases around Hanoi and Haiphong in the North.

It was neither a simple nor easy decision, and Johnson sweated it out a long time, although the immediate purpose was clear enough, as Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara explained:

To shut off the flow of men and arms which the North Vietnamese were sending into the South by truck and powered junks. What couldn't be predicted was whether this would induce Red China to get into the war.

Johnson, always concerned about having the American people behind him abroad as well as at home, had been caught in the middle for many months and had refrained from deciding.

Those who wanted a stronger war against the Reds, in an effort to shorten the war and save American lives, urged far tougher action, including such bombing as Wednesday's.

Those who wanted no war, or a very limited one, opposed the new air strikes.

Johnson has been pictured as a man so consumed by his desire for "consensus" that he is forever pulling public opinion polls out of his pocket to show White House visitors.

In a speech he made early in 1965 he dwelt on "consensus" 13 times, although he wasn't talking of Viet Nam at the time.

But he has been in the presidency over 2½ years now and the soaring approval the polls showed for him in the early days has gone down steadily, and not just in popularity.

This month a Gallup poll showed only 46 per cent of the people questioned approved Johnson's handling of the war, compared with 63 per cent last January.

Gradually Johnson reached a point that others before him had to face: That a president is a leader and may have to act for what he considers the good of the country even if popular opinion isn't with him.

And this month he sent an aide a quote from Sir Winston Churchill on the danger of relying on polls: "Nothing is more dangerous than to live in the temperamental atmosphere of a Gallup poll, always taking one's pulse and taking one's temperature."

"There is only one duty, one safe course, and that is to try to be right and not to fear to do or say what you believe to be right."

A legislative body like Congress has to be more sensitive and responsive to consensus since the 535 members more directly represent the views of the people in their states and districts.

A president must be concerned about the people's wishes, and try to fulfill them when he is convinced they are in the national interest. But he has more information than anyone else.

And when he is faced with a decision on what he considers a national necessity, even though contrary to public opinion, he has the obligation to make it. Otherwise he is not a leader but a follower.

Resigns P&R Position

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Julian James of Jonesboro has resigned from the state Publicity and Parks Commission.

Gov. Orval Faubus said Monday that James, a Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, submitted his resignation last week.

4 American Planes Shot Down Friday

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Four U.S. planes were shot down over North Viet Nam Friday, the U.S. command announced.

One pilot was picked up at sea. The others were sighted parachuting down but enemy ground fire thwarted the rescue. They were listed as missing in action.

The planes were on various missions. In all, American planes flew 42 missions over North Viet Nam Friday.

One of their targets was a fuel dump in the Dong Hoi area.

The Air Force said black smoke rose from the target as the planes flew away.

Army Wanted Bombings Much Earlier

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's civilian decision-makers lagged months behind the military chiefs in reaching the view that oil stocks near Haiphong had to be knocked out.

The Joint Chiefs took the position that it was of the utmost importance to hit the petroleum stocks there, so that the truck traffic carrying men and war supplies to the Communists in South Viet Nam might be hampered.

The oil tanks about two miles from Haiphong contained about 40 per cent of the total North Vietnamese storage capacity. There were 30 tanks above ground, three below ground and they held an estimated 72,000 metric tons.

But the civilian leaders withheld permission to strike the oil targets so close to the main port city. Their concern was over possible civilian casualties and damage to ships in port — including Russian ships whose loss might impel the Soviet Union into a bigger role in the war.

Decision-making also figured in Congressional testimony made public today. Gen. John P. McConnell, the Air Force chief of staff, told a Senate Defense subcommittee May 9 that President Johnson personally designated all major bombing targets in Viet Nam.

The four-star general said the Joint Chiefs of Staff submit proposed targets "and the President either approves them or disapproves them. He takes the advice of, I guess, the State Department and other Cabinet people in coming to his conclusions."

Officials told newsmen earlier this year that the risks involved in striking at targets close to Hanoi and Haiphong outweighed the probable gains. One of the risks mentioned was the possibility that Red China might react militarily.

Apparently, these officials have now reached the conclusion that the gains are worth the risk — or that the risk wasn't so great as once thought.

In explaining some of the reasons for hitting the oil depots, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara spoke Wednesday of heavily increased enemy truck movement and the improvement of the infiltration routes. Neither of these is a recent phenomenon.

Repeatedly during the premonition period, U.S. officials told newsmen that the North Vietnamese were rushing supplies into South Viet Nam by growing numbers of trucks, even risking daylight convoys to achieve a buildup before the rains came in May.

Saigon military officials said in April that about 200 miles of roads had been laid down in Laos in an engineering effort they said began at the end of the 1965 rainy season.

4 American Planes Shot Down Friday

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Four U.S. planes were shot down over North Viet Nam Friday, the U.S. command announced.

One pilot was picked up at sea. The others were sighted parachuting down but enemy ground fire thwarted the rescue. They were listed as missing in action.

The planes were on various missions. In all, American planes flew 42 missions over North Viet Nam Friday.

One of their targets was a fuel dump in the Dong Hoi area.

The Air Force said black smoke rose from the target as the planes flew away.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's civilian decision-makers lagged months behind the military chiefs in reaching the view that oil stocks near Haiphong had to be knocked out.

The Joint Chiefs took the position that it was of the utmost importance to hit the petroleum stocks there, so that the truck traffic carrying men and war supplies to the Communists in South Viet Nam might be hampered.

The oil tanks about two miles from Haiphong contained about 40 per cent of the total North Vietnamese storage capacity. There were 30 tanks above ground, three below ground and they held an estimated 72,000 metric tons.

But the civilian leaders withheld permission to strike the oil targets so close to the main port city. Their concern was over possible civilian casualties and damage to ships in port — including Russian ships whose loss might impel the Soviet Union into a bigger role in the war.

Decision-making also figured in Congressional testimony made public today. Gen. John P. McConnell, the Air Force chief of staff, told a Senate Defense subcommittee May 9 that President Johnson personally designated all major bombing targets in Viet Nam.

The four-star general said the Joint Chiefs of Staff submit proposed targets "and the President either approves them or disapproves them. He takes the advice of, I guess, the State Department and other Cabinet people in coming to his conclusions."
